

BATTLE IMMINENT IN WEST VIRGINIA

Sheriff and Several Others
Already Shot Down

POSSE CHASING MURDERERS

Jackson Brothers, Who Did Killing at Montgomery, at Bay, and Will Fight to Death.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 11.—What promises to be one of the hardest fought battles in the history of Fayette county, is imminent in the mountains south of Montgomery, where an armed posse of 200 men is believed to have surrounded Harvey Jackson, and his two brothers, who are wanted for the murder of Sheriff Daniels and John Rolf here Thursday.

The Jacksons are known to have two Winchester, and several revolvers apiece, and are not expected to be taken alive, knowing that if they surrender they will be lynched.

A message received from the posse early today, stated that they were close to the place where the Jacksons had taken refuge, and that the force had been divided to take them simultaneously from all sides.

County Excited.

Owing to the inaccessible character of the country it is hard to get news from there, and the entire population of the locality is excited.

The whole trouble grows out of the murder of Constable W. A. Jackson, by Policeman Elliott, following a political argument Wednesday night. Hearing of the murder of his brother, Harvey Jackson and his two brothers, armed themselves and started for Montgomery to "clean out" the entire police force.

A hurry message was sent for Sheriff Daniels, one of the most popular and wealthiest men in Fayette county. He got to Montgomery as the Jacksons entered the town and immediately placed Harvey Jackson under arrest.

The latter, instead of submitting, drew a revolver and killed the sheriff. Rolf started to the rescue, and he, too, was shot and instantly killed.

Harvey then reloaded his revolver, and pulling another from his pocket, he defied anyone in the town to take him. The other Jackson boys joined their brother immediately after the shooting. For half an hour the three men paraded the streets, firing revolvers and defying the towns. The people were in a panic and crawled into cellars.

In the Mountains.

Finally the brothers started on a run for the mountains and escaped.

A message was sent to Fayette, a special train was ordered, and fifty citizens left for Montgomery. A posse of 200 men was then quickly organized, and under the leadership of the police, the pursuit was started.

All afternoon the posse ranged the woods on the mountain side, but were unable to find the fugitives. The Jackson boys live in the country, near Montgomery, and their home is being watched in the hope that they might try to return for food.

LEW BOW FOO CAN STAY IN AMERICA

USED UP ALL HIS MONEY

Case Interesting to All Chinamen.
Father Not Affected By Exclusion Law.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Amid the rejoicings of former pupils and teachers of the Sunday schools he attended and several of his own countrymen who have testified in his behalf, Lew Bow Foo, a laundryman, whose fight against deportation has occupied more than a year and consumed all his resources, has been freed from the custody of the Federal officials in Brooklyn.

The case of Foo was one of exceptional interest among those of the Chinamen who have been arrested for being unable to show their right to live in this country under the exclusion laws affecting their race.

Foo's father, who was a merchant, was exempt from the operation of the law. Foo came here when a child and has acquired a fluent use of English. His dress and manners are those of an American. Legal questions raised in his case were decided in his favor by United States Commissioner Cochran and his discharge followed.

POSTOFFICE PUTS END TO ADAMS' SCIENCE

His Fortune Telling, Love Potions, and Astrological Knowledge Placed Under Ban of Official Fraud Order.

To be able to read the future of others for years to come, and to tell others things they really must know, is a power that George Adams, whose name was once Prof. George Rupert, before the postal authorities were made and unkind enough to make him disappear, seems unable to work upon himself. If he could, he might not now be incarcerated in a Boston jail.

Prof. Adams was, before the authorities pulled him off his pedestal, an astrologer, a scientist, who dealt in love potions such as once wrecked crowns a couple of centuries ago, and a soothsayer who daily gathered fees from his gullible victims.

More telling of fortunes was not all that Prof. Adams was capable of, though that was what most people took advantage of. Letters to folk who had never heard of him before stated in a delightfully confidential and friendly way that "a very dear friend of theirs" had asked him to read their horoscope and they believed that it would do the person in question much good. Adams admitted having already glanced over the addressee's horoscope, and had found much that should really be made known. So it was greatly to be desired that the coming victim should answer some questions and, incidentally, enclose $1.50 the latter merely to make sure that the horoscope would be in working order.

But that was not all. The gods of love were under the control of the mysterious man. Love potions concocted by himself were for sale for $5. The powders would do wonders, and with their assistance one could arouse in anyone else a sense of fondness and regard that was simply wonderful. Prof. Adams regarded the price as very cheap.

The man operated in Boston under the name of George Adams, and the George Adams Company. He was arrested on October 26 for another violation of the postal laws.

While he was trying to cross the railroad tracks at Franklin, N. J., the wheels of the little wagon caught between the rails, and before they could be released an express train struck the aged couple, hurling them from the track and demolishing the wagon.

The aged man died in a hospital here soon after. His wife, who was practically unharmed, continued to reside here, supported by charity, until she died of grief today.

Two sons of the aged couple were killed by trains several years ago.
